1. WHAT IS THE ANTI-PERSONNEL MINE BAN CONVENTION?

What is the Anti-Personnel Mine Ban Convention?

The AP Mine Ban Convention is a short reference to the 1997 Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on Their Destruction, also known as the Ottawa Convention.

The Convention is the international community's comprehensive response to the humanitarian problems caused by anti-personnel mines, weapons that are indiscriminate and that last for decades after conflicts have ended.

The Convention was adopted in Oslo on 18 September 1997 and opened for signature in Ottawa on 3 and 4 December 1997.

For their determination in calling for the Convention, the International Campaign to Ban Landmines and its coordinator Jody Williams were awarded the 1997 Nobel Peace Prize.

The Convention entered into force on 1 March 1999.

The Convention's second five-year review, the Cartagena Summit on a Mine-Free World, was held in Cartagena, Colombia in 2009. At that event, the Cartagena Action Plan 2010-2014 was adopted at a high political level.

By adopting the Cartagena Action Plan, the Convention's States Parties made 67 specific commitments in support of enhanced implementation and promotion of the Convention during the period leading to the Convention's third five-year review in 2014.

What is the purpose of the Convention?

The purpose of the Convention is "to put an end to the suffering and casualties caused by anti-personnel mines" through the pursuit of four core aims:

- > universal acceptance of a ban on anti-personnel mines;
- > destruction of stockpiled anti-personnel mines;
- > clearance of mined areas; and
- > providing assistance to mine victims.

How many countries have joined?

160 States have ratified or have acceded to the Convention. They include:

- > most of the States that at one time used, stockpiled, produced or transferred anti-personnel mines;
- > the vast majority of States that are or have been affected by anti-personnel mines;
- > every State in the Americas, except Cuba and the United States; and
- > every State in Sub-Saharan Africa.

1. WHAT IS THE ANTI-PERSONNEL MINE BAN CONVENTION?

What has been the impact of the Convention?

Use of anti-personnel mines has decreased dramatically – 160 countries have agreed to not use anti-personnel mines by ratifying or acceding to the Convention. Most States not party adhere to the Convention's norms.

Production has decreased significantly – 34 States of 50 that previously manufactured anti-personnel mines are now bound by the Convention's ban on production. Most States not party have placed moratoria on production and / or transfers of anti-personnel mines.

Destruction of stockpiled mines is one of the Convention's great success stories – more than 44.5 million mines have been destroyed by the States Parties and 155 States Parties now no longer hold stocks.

Demining has resulted in millions of square metres of once dangerous land being released for normal human activity. Of the 59 States Parties that originally reported mined areas, 20 have completed the task of clearing all such areas. Annual casualty rates have fallen in many countries.

Survivors' needs are being taken seriously. The Convention is the first arms control / disarmament convention that takes their needs into account. Many of the States Parties responsible for significant numbers of survivors have developed objectives and / or a plan of action to meet the needs and guarantee the rights of landmine survivors and other persons with disabilities.

2. WHAT IS THE TWELFTH MEETING OF THE STATES PARTIES (12MSP)?

- > The Twelfth Meeting of the States Parties (12MSP) is a formal, diplomatic meeting of the 160 States which have accepted the Convention. They include most of the States that at one time used, stockpiled, produced or transferred anti-personnel mines and the vast majority of States that are or have been affected by anti-personnel mines.
- > The 12MSP is taking place at the mid-way point between the 2009 Cartagena Summit on a Mine-Free World and the Convention's Third Review Conference in 2014. It is a chance for the international community to conduct a mid-term assessment of efforts to implement the Cartagena Action Plan 2010-2014. This assessment of encountered challenges and work that remains to be done will be recorded in the 12MSP's Geneva Progress Report.
- > The 12MSP is also an opportunity to draw a link between the Convention's promise to landmine survivors and broader efforts to guarantee the rights of persons with disabilities. With the opening of the 12MSP coinciding with the International Day for Persons with Disabilities, this link will be highlighted by the participation in the 12MSP by the United Nations' High Commissioner for Human Rights, Navi Pillay.
- > At the 12MSP, it is expected that some States Parties will declare completion of their demining programmes. Others, including Afghanistan, Angola, Cyprus and Zimbabwe will formally request extensions on their mine clearance deadlines.
- > The 12MSP will take place at the United Nations Office in Geneva. More than 800 delegates representing more than 100 States and dozens of international and non-governmental organisations are expected to attend. Some States are expected to be represented at the ministerial level.

3. WHAT WILL HAPPEN AT THE 12MSP?

MONDAY 3 DECEMBER

- > The 12MSP will be opened by the Convention's outgoing President, H.E. Prak Sokhonn, Minister Attached to the Prime Minister of Cambodia and Vice President of the Cambodian Mine Action and Victim Assistance Authority (CMAA). The States Parties are then expected to elect H.E. Matjaz Kovacic, Permanent Representative of Slovenia to the United Nations Office in Geneva, as President of the 12MSP.
- > A high level opening ceremony will take place, involving UN Human Rights Chief, Navi Pillay, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Slovenia, Karl Erjavec, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Switzerland, Didier Burkhalter and 1997 Nobel Peace Prize co-laureate, Jody Williams.

The Convention's outgoing President will then present an analysis of each request. Delegations will have until 7 December before they will be asked to take decisions on each request.
- > The States Parties will consider recommendations to ensure that high quality mine clearance extension requests and analyses continue to be prepared.

3. WHAT WILL HAPPEN AT THE 12MSP?

TUESDAY 4 DECEMBER

- > The States Parties will provide updates on the pursuit of the Convention's core aims and other matters essential for achieving these aims, beginning with a discussion on assisting the survivors. - > Every State in Sub-Saharan Africa has joined the Convention.

Challenges that remain

- > 36 States have not yet ratified or acceded to the Convention.
- > The rate of adherence remains low in Asia, the Middle East and among the members of the Commonwealth of Independent States.
- > Among these States are several which could have a significant impact on the goals of the Convention. Combined, six of these States – China, India, the Republic of Korea, Pakistan, Russia and the United States – may hold tens of millions of stockpiled anti-personnel mines.

6. BANNING USE, PRODUCTION AND TRANSFERS

What the Convention says

- > Each State Party undertakes never under any circumstances:
  - > to use anti-personnel mines;
  - > to develop, produce, otherwise acquire, stockpile, retain or transfer to anyone, directly or indirectly, anti-personnel mines; and
  - > to assist, encourage or induce, in any way, anyone to engage in any activity prohibited to a State Party under this Convention.
- > “The Articles of this Convention shall not be subject to reservations.”

Progress made

- > The use of anti-personnel mines has decreased dramatically. The Convention’s prohibition on the use of anti-personnel mines binds its 160 parties and this norm has enjoyed widespread acceptance by other States.
- > By having joined the Convention, 160 of the world’s States have accepted a legally-binding prohibition on transfers of anti-personnel mines. Even for most other States this has become the accepted norm.
- > The production of anti-personnel mines has decreased significantly: of the 50 States that at one time produced anti-personnel mines, 34 are now party to the Convention.

Challenges that remain

- > While new emplacements of anti-personnel mines are now rare, several States not party may still perceive that they derive utility from previously emplaced anti-personnel mines.
- > As long as States not party possess stockpiled anti-personnel mines and have not indicated an intention to destroy them, it must be assumed that they remain ready to make new use of these mines.
- > Universal acceptance of the Convention’s norms is impeded by some armed non-State actors that continue to use, stockpile, and produce anti-personnel mines.

7. DESTROYING STOCKPILED MINES

What the Convention says

- > Each State Party “undertakes to destroy or ensure the destruction of all stockpiled anti-personnel mines it owns or possesses, or that are under its jurisdiction or control, as soon as possible but not later than four years after the entry into force of this Convention for that State Party.”
- > States Parties may retain “a number of anti-personnel mines for the development of and training in mine detection, mine clearance, or mine destruction techniques.” This number “shall not exceed the minimum number absolutely necessary” for these purposes.

Progress made

- > 155 States Parties now no longer hold stockpiled anti-personnel mines.
- > Together the States Parties have destroyed more than 44.5 million mines.

Challenges that remain

- > Five States Parties are still in the process of destroying their stockpiled anti-personnel mines.
- > Combined, these five States Parties must destroy more than 10 million anti-personnel mines.
- > Destroying a particular type of mine – the Soviet-era “PFM-1” mine – is extremely hazardous and poses serious technical difficulties.

Deadlines for the destruction of stockpiled anti-personnel mines

State Party	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016
Belarus	1 March 2008
Finland								1 July 2016
Greece	1 March 2008
South Sudan							9 July 2015
Ukraine		1 June 2010

8. CLEARING MINED AREAS

What the Convention says

- > Each State Party must make “every effort to identify all areas under its jurisdiction or control in which anti-personnel mines are known or suspected to be emplaced.”
- > Each State Party must “as soon as possible” ensure that these mined areas “are perimeter marked, monitored and protected by fencing or other means, to ensure the effective exclusion of civilians, until all anti-personnel mines contained therein have been destroyed.”
- > Each State Party must “destroy or ensure the destruction of all anti-personnel mines in mined areas (...) as soon as possible but not later than 10 years after the entry into force of this Convention for that State Party.”
- > If a State Party believes it is unable to destroy or ensure the destruction of all anti-personnel mines in mined areas within 10 years, it may request an extension.

Progress made

- > 59 States Parties have reported mined areas under their jurisdiction or control. Of these, 20 have indicated that they have fulfilled their clearance obligation:

Albania	Guatemala	Rwanda
Bulgaria	Guinea-Bissau	Suriname
Costa Rica	Honduras	Swaziland
Denmark	Jordan	The Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia
Djibouti	Malawi	Tunisia
France	Nicaragua	Zambia
Greece	Nigeria

- > Demining activities and risk-reduction efforts have led to a reduction in the annual casualty rates in most countries.

Challenges that remain

- > It will take some States Parties several more years to fulfil their mine clearance obligation.
- > Fulfilling obligations will require effective use of the full range of methods to release suspected mined areas, including non-technical survey, technical survey and manual/mechanical clearance.
- > Many States Parties must still undertake or complete the task of making every effort to identify all areas in which anti-personnel mines are known or suspected to be emplaced.

Each State Party must destroy or ensure the destruction of all anti-personnel mines in mined areas as soon as possible, but not later than 10 years after entry into force of the Convention for a State Party. These 10 year deadlines are represented by dark blue bars in the table above.

If a State Party believes it will be unable to destroy or ensure the destruction of all anti-personnel mines in mined areas within 10-years, it may request an extension. Extended deadlines are represented by the light blue bars in the table above.

9. ASSISTING THE VICTIMS

What the Convention says and what the States Parties understand

- > Each State Party in a position to do so is obliged to provide assistance for the care and rehabilitation, and social and economic reintegration of mine victims.
- > The States Parties have defined a “landmine victim” broadly, to include individuals, families and communities – those who, either individually or collectively, have suffered physical or psychological injury, economic loss or substantial impairment of their fundamental rights through acts or omissions related to mine utilisation.
- > The States Parties understand “victim assistance” as a process that involves an age- and gender-sensitive, rights based and holistic approach. It includes the following components: emergency and continuing medical care, physical rehabilitation, psychological support, and social and economic reintegration / inclusion.
- > The States Parties understand the place of victim assistance within the broader context of disability, healthcare, social services, rehabilitation, reintegration, employment, development, human rights and gender equality. They recognise that their efforts should promote the development of services, infrastructure, and policies to address the rights and needs of all women, girls, boys and men with disabilities, regardless of the cause of the disability.

Progress made

- > For the first time, a disarmament/arms control convention contains measures to assist the victims of the weapons in question.
- > The Convention has drawn attention to the plight of landmine survivors – and hence the challenges of all persons with disabilities – in some of the world’s poorest countries.
- > Efforts taken in the context of the Convention to enhance healthcare, rehabilitation and other services have benefited landmine survivors and broader communities.
- > Specialised organisations, such as the ICRC and Handicap International have generated tens of millions of dollars in support of emergency medical care, physical rehabilitation and other assistance.
- > There are 28 States Parties that have reported a responsibility for significant numbers of landmine survivors. Many of these have developed measurable victim assistance objectives and are implementing plans of action to meet the needs and guarantee the rights of landmine survivors and other persons with disabilities.
- > The Convention’s practices in responding to the needs of mine survivors have served as the model for other instruments of international humanitarian law, including the 2008 Convention on Cluster Munitions.

Challenges that remain

- > The States Parties responsible for significant numbers of landmine survivors include some of the poorest countries on earth. Achieving progress is complicated by the broader set of complex challenges that most developing countries face.
- > States Parties will need to continue to deepen their sense of responsibility to provide for the care and rehabilitation and social and economic reintegration of mine survivors, particularly as the needs of survivors will remain long after mined areas have been cleared.
- > While significant process-related gains have been made, it remains challenging to translate increased understanding on victim assistance into tangible improvements and a sustainable difference in the daily lives of mine survivors.

10. OTHER IMPORTANT MATTERS FOR ACHIEVING THE AIMS OF THE CONVENTION

What the Convention says

- > Cooperation Each State Party has the right to seek and receive assistance. Each State Party in a position to do so is obliged to provide assistance.
- > Transparency Each State Party must provide an initial transparency report within 180 days of the Convention entering into force, and hence update this report annually.
- > Compliance The primary responsibility for ensuring compliance with the Convention rests with each individual State Party through legal and other measures it is obliged to take to prevent and suppress prohibited acts.

Progress made

- > Cooperation Global funding levels for activities consistent with the aims of the Convention remain high with approximately US 500 million having been generated annually in recent years.
- > Transparency All but three States Parties have complied with the requirement to submit an initial transparency report.
- > Compliance There are now 63 States Parties that have reported that they have adopted legislation to prevent and suppress prohibited acts. In addition, 35 States Parties have indicated that they consider existing laws to be sufficient.

Challenges that remain

- > Cooperation A dilemma exists in that while a great deal of funding continues to be generated in general terms for “mine action”, this is not addressing the specific needs of some States Parties that are in the process of implementing the Convention.
- > Transparency Several States Parties, including some for which the Convention entered into force several years ago, have not yet provided clarity pursuant to their obligation to report on “the location of all mined areas that contain or are suspected to contain anti-personnel mines.”
- > Compliance There are 62 States Parties that have not yet indicated that have legislation sufficient to prevent and suppress prohibited acts.

12. CONVENTION ON THE PROHIBITION OF THE USE, STOCKPILING, PRODUCTION AND TRANSFER OF ANTI-PERSONNEL MINES AND ON THEIR DESTRUCTION

Preamble

The States Parties,

Determined to put an end to the suffering and casualties caused by anti-personnel mines, that kill or maim hundreds of people every week, mostly innocent and defenceless civilians and especially children, obstruct economic development and reconstruction, inhibit the repatriation of refugees and internally displaced persons, and have other severe consequences for years after emplacement,

Believing it necessary to do their utmost to contribute in an efficient and coordinated manner to face the challenge of removing anti-personnel mines placed throughout the world, and to assure their destruction,

Wishing to do their utmost in providing assistance for the care and rehabilitation, including the social and economic reintegration of mine victims,

Recognizing that a total ban of anti-personnel mines would also be an important confidence-building measure,

Welcoming the adoption of the Protocol on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Mines, Booby-Traps and Other Devices, as amended on 3 May 1996, annexed to the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects, and calling for the early ratification of this Protocol by all States which have not yet done so,

Welcoming also United Nations General Assembly Resolution 51/45 S of 10 December 1996 urging all States to pursue vigorously an effective, legally-binding international agreement to ban the use, stockpiling, production and transfer of anti-personnel landmines,

Convention signing ceremony | Ottawa | 3 December 1997

Welcoming furthermore the measures taken over the past years, both unilaterally and multilaterally, aiming at prohibiting, restricting or suspending the use, stockpiling, production and transfer of anti-personnel mines,

Stressing the role of public conscience in furthering the principles of humanity as evidenced by the call for a total ban of anti-personnel mines and recognizing the efforts to that end undertaken by the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, the International Campaign to Ban Landmines and numerous other non-governmental organizations around the world,

Recalling the Ottawa Declaration of 5 October 1996 and the Brussels Declaration of 27 June 1997 urging the international community to negotiate an international and legally binding agreement prohibiting the use, stockpiling, production and transfer of anti-personnel mines,

Emphasizing the desirability of attracting the adherence of all States to this Convention, and determined to work strenuously towards the promotion of its universalization in all relevant fora including, inter alia, the United Nations, the Conference on Disarmament, regional organizations, and groupings, and review conferences of the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects,

Basing themselves on the principle of international humanitarian law that the right of the parties to an armed conflict to choose methods or means of warfare is not unlimited, on the principle that prohibits the employment in armed conflicts of weapons, projectiles and materials and methods of warfare of a nature to cause superfluous injury or unnecessary suffering and on the principle that a distinction must be made between civilians and combatants,
